Question 1a (1 mark)

In which country is the GDP per capita higher, the United States or China?

The United States

Question 1b (1 mark)

Would you classify China as a developed nation?

Traditionally, China has been considered a developing country due to its lower average income levels, significant rural population, and ongoing economic and social development challenges.

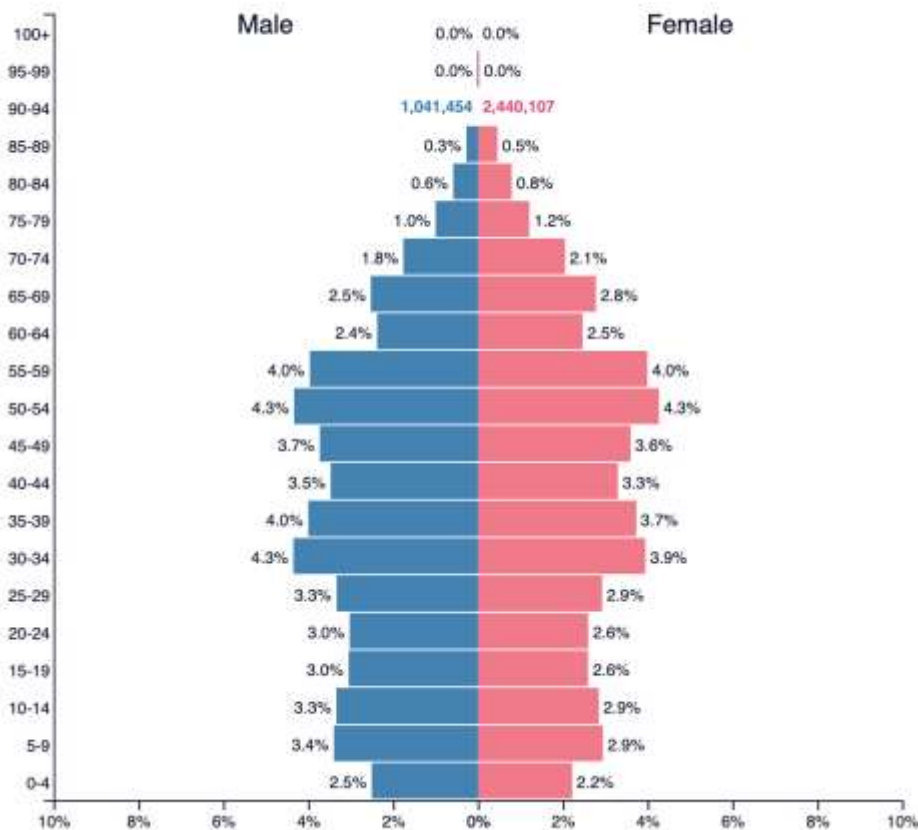

However, in recent years, China has made substantial progress in various indicators of development, such as technological advancements, infrastructure development, and poverty reduction. It is now the world's second-largest economy and has achieved significant industrialization and urbanization.

Question 2 (6 marks)

Referring to the data below, describe three changes between the population pyramids for China in 2022 and 2050.

Population: 1,425,887,336
